

Everybody wants to tell her what to do

Hey guys how's it going this is Jacqueline the unimportant homemaker and Today let's talk about authority.

In the beginning, Lord God gave instructions to the man. When the woman answered the serpent, she responded with an extra phrase in addition to what the Lord God told Adam. So some assume the man told the woman to not even touch the fruit. But the serpent tricked the woman. That makes 4 individuals who gave the woman instructions. God, her husband, the evil one and herself. Because she reasoned that the food did look good to her and could make one wise. she sought her own counsel.

Everybody wants to tell the woman what to do.

But who did her maker give that authority to? Her husband. The giver of all authority gave the authority to her husband. So the wife is to subject herself and be obedient to her own husband.

Let's look briefly in this video why each individual wants to tell the woman what to do..

Herself

She has her instructions, from God and her husband, but she allowed the evil one to trick her into disbelief while she also judged the situation with her eyes and desire for more. This sounds so much like women, right. We know the right thing to do, Titus 2, proverbs 31, the marriage vows we made, but yet, our eyes see something else that looks good, like the right to make our own decisions, and our desire wants more than we have. So she has the inclination, very, very often to disregard what she was instructed by the Lord God and instead, be seduced by the evil one and her own fleshly desires.

The evil one

He wants to thwart God's plan, he has from the beginning. He is a liar, a deceiver, a destroyer and also a reader of the word of God. Remember Satan quotes Scripture. But he hates God and all of his plans and all of those who are loyal, blood bought children of the Father and He would love to deceive the woman. So he twists scripture, and shows her that she can have wisdom instead and that they are keeping something from her and that she won't have real consequences on her decision. This makes sense because women are always, always, always absolutely positive they are smarter than men, especially their own husbands. And she likes what the world has to offer because the world doesn't ask her to submit herself to no man, she don't even need a man. So she gets tricked, again, to leave the leadership of her husband and her Lord and instead do her own thing and lead her husband by the nose over to her side.

Her husband

He has a job to do. He is happy to have a woman who completes what is deficient within himself and he wants to lead her, knowing what is best for them both because she's a part of him, literally. They are one and it's on him to make sure they survive and be happy and all of that. So he sets the tone. He has a way, a plan, a method and he tells her. She knows him, or she's learning him and his ways and she sees that he has specific wishes for her. But here's the thing: even unbelieving husbands have a specific way they want their wives to be. His submission to the Lord is not required for the believing wife. And if the wife isn't a believer, none of this video is for her anyway because she has a different master than the Christian woman. Anyway, the husband will absolutely make his intentions and desires and expectations for his wife very clear to her and he wants to be obeyed and to feel confident she submits to his leadership and authority.

The Lord God

The maker of the woman knows her because he made her. He knows what her purpose is, what her natural use is for, what is to be her glory and her honor, what she was made to do and to be and He told her and he told us in his word. He also has made it very clear his plans for the woman and they include her subjecting herself to her husband in obedience as unto him, her Lord.

So God told her. Her husband told her. Satan asked her a puzzling question to trick her. And she reasons within herself and makes her decision.

This is fascinating to me and I'll leave it here for now.

What about you? Have you taken time to really evaluate the individuals who want to tell you what to do? Let me know down below in the comments section.

That's it for today guys thank you for joining me. I'll see you next time.
